A Message from Our Board Chair & CEO

Safe Horizon has been working to prevent violence, provide support, and promote justice for victims of crime and abuse for nearly four decades. Each year, we offer essential support to those affected by domestic violence, child abuse, human trafficking, sexual assault, and youth homelessness. In 2016, Safe Horizon touched the lives of over 250,000 survivors of crime and abuse—providing safe environments and vital care to those seeking assistance.

We could not open our doors and serve so many populations without the generous support of our donors and partners.

Whether through direct action or by advocating for sound legislative policies, our Safe Horizon staff are dedicated to making services and options available to victims. We work tirelessly to increase outreach and awareness, so that we may actively assist those who need our support.

2016 afforded us new opportunities to enrich and expand our work.

» The Crime Victim Assistance Program (CVAP) is a groundbreaking program created last year through a new partnership developed between the NYPD and Safe Horizon. The program assigns advocates for victims of domestic violence and all crimes to precinct station houses across New York City. By the end of 2018, we will have advocates in every precinct in every borough. Advocates not only examine crime reports to determine who might benefit from outreach, they are also on-hand to answer victims' questions and to demystify the sometimes confusing criminal justice process.

» Safe Horizon joined experts from organizations throughout the City to form "The Young Men of Color Working Group" in late 2015. Statistics indicate that young black and Latino men are more likely to be victimized by crime than any other age, racial, or gender demographic group. Safe Horizon is addressing this problem head-on. Since creation, the group has been hard at work to identify and explore effective outreach methods to engage young men, remove barriers to services, and provide assistance.

» Safe Horizon has had a long history of influencing policy and budgetary priorities at the national, state, and local levels. In 2016, Safe Horizon met directly with the Governor's office and state legislators to advocate for passage of the Child Victims Act. This long-overdue legislation aims to reform New York's overly rigid statute of limitation laws for survivors of childhood sexual abuse—allowing more time to bring criminal charges and file civil litigation against those responsible for abuse. While the legislation did not pass in 2016, we are feeling more confident than ever that it will move forward in 2017.

» Our two new satellite counseling sites have helped with accessibility and outreach within their respective communities. Both sites, the first located within our Manhattan/Bronx Community Program and the second within one of our own domestic violence shelters, are invaluable resources to our clients.

» In 2016, we also focused on enhancing Safe Horizon's online engagement with clients, supporters and the public. We developed a new website with streamlined design, making navigation easier for all visitors. Also, we made improvements to our mobile interface so people can easily retrieve information and get the help they need, no matter how they are reaching us.

These are just a few examples of how you have helped more victims become survivors. Thank you so much for your compassion and your dedication towards creating a society free of family and community violence. Our work would not be possible without donors and supporters like you.

Meeting Clients Where They Are

Community Programs

Our Community Programs serve all five boroughs of New York City and provide help to victims of crime and abuse. Centrally located for easy travel and accessibility, all locations are dedicated to ensuring that survivors can obtain support and care when they need it—and right in their own neighborhood. This means that caseworkers are on-site at each center to offer a range of services, from case management and supportive counseling to safety planning and referrals. In 2016, Safe Horizon Community Programs reached 2,319 clients.

“I will never forget the first thing that Safe Horizon staff person Eri said to me when I sat down with her for my first meeting, ‘You are never alone and it is not your fault.’”

-Wanda Lucibello, Associate VP, CVAP

Not only do Community Programs provide ongoing client assistance, they continue to be an important resource during moments of crisis. It is through these Community Programs that we also operate a successful Helpline, answering calls to disseminate information and provide support.

Young Men of Color

In October of 2015, Safe Horizon launched a pilot project to enhance services to young men of color harmed by crime and abuse. National data from the Bureau of Justice Statistics indicates that young men of color (particularly Black and Latino youth) are more likely to be victimized by crime than any other demographic, yet research shows that young men of color are less likely to receive access to the kinds of services critical to their well-being. Through internal efforts as well as collaboration with organizations throughout New York City, Safe Horizon has sought to strengthen the network of support for these young men. Furthermore, as one of twelve grantees of Department of Justice funding for our efforts, Safe Horizon is part of a national network of organizations committed to improving outcomes for young men of color who experience harm.

To achieve these goals, Safe Horizon has engaged staff from our Community Programs and Counseling Center in trainings and staff development to enhance the programs' capacity to effectively serve young men of color. In 2016, we also held monthly meetings with several New York City based organizations that serve this population. These meetings, which we called the Working Group, yielded many positive outcomes, including the creation of a toolkit of resources that will be used in the service of young men. Finally, we have engaged groups of young men to learn from their experiences and inform the direction of our work. This year, we will be focusing our efforts on increased outreach to young men, their families and communities to deepen our engagement with this population. As we continue, we are exploring ways that we can be present in places where young men live –in order to further reach those who have been impacted and who may be experiencing trauma.

Crime Victim Assistance Program

The Crime Victim Assistance Program (CVAP) places Safe Horizon crime and domestic violence victim advocates in police precincts throughout New York City. Our growing program included 26 precincts in 2016, employing two advocates at each site. These personnel reach out to victims who've filed police reports and assist those who may walk in looking for help. Advocates also help navigate victims through the criminal justice system. Trained advocates are equipped with specific language skills - corresponding to surrounding demographics—to ensure clarity and to meet the community's requirements in a meaningful way.

“CVAP will provide a model for other cities and locales to replicate.”

-Wanda Lucibello, Associate VP, CVAP

“CVAP, a game changer in victim services.”

-Maureen Curtis, VP of Criminal Justice Programs

Counseling Centers

Our Counseling Center is the only New York State licensed mental health clinic that focuses solely on trauma-focused treatment for survivors of crime and abuse of all ages. We support survivors not only through therapy, but by connecting them to a range of Safe Horizon services. These services include: practical assistance, support groups, and shelter for both homeless youth and victims of domestic violence.

Safe Horizon is a champion of evidence-based approaches to help clients overcome trauma reactions—which survivors can experience for years. This type of practice involves integration of the best available research with clinical expertise in the context of patient characteristics, culture, and preferences. In 2016 alone, Safe Horizon provided 10,924 therapy sessions, thanks to the Counseling Center and its satellite locations (located within our Manhattan/Bronx Community Program and within our Rose House domestic violence shelter).

Safe Horizon sites often use art to create a warm and welcoming environment, helping put clients at ease

“We celebrate our daughter’s life rather than mourn her loss, and know that as long as she is in our hearts, she is with us always. Safe Horizon helped us do that.”

Celebrities such as Dave Navarro, Jana Kramer and Michael Bolton, were critical in helping promote the #PutTheNailInIt Campaign

#PutTheNailInIt

After a successful launch in 2015, Safe Horizon held its second annual #PutTheNailInIt campaign during October—Domestic Violence Awareness Month—to raise funds for victim services and to educate the public about this prevalent crisis. Currently, an estimated 1 in 4 women and 1 in 7 men will be a victim of domestic violence during their lifetime according to the Center for Disease Control (CDC). Safe horizon aims to change these staggering statistics and put an end to domestic violence and the silence surrounding it.

Joining the #PutTheNailInIt campaign is easy: 1. Make a donation 2. Paint your ring fingernail any shade of purple 3. Share an image of your painted fingernail on social media with the hashtag #PutTheNailInIt.

People responded in 2016 by sharing personal stories and by using the hashtag more than 11,000 times, generating an estimated 100 million views. Celebrity spokespeople such as Tamron Hall, Alan Cumming, Kyra Sedgwick, Michael Bolton, and Carrie Underwood also lent their voices to help raise awareness of the campaign.

Together, the effort raised more than $80,000. Visit PutTheNailInIt.org to learn more and find out how you can do your part to end domestic violence.

The Tamron ♥ Renate Fund

Tamron Hall, award winning journalist and host of Investigation Discovery's Deadline: Crime with Tamron Hall created a fund in honor of her sister Renate, called the The Tamron ♥ Renate Fund.

Tamron Hall and her family, including her sister's two sons Damion and Leroy, were devastated by domestic violence when her sister Renate was killed and they were left with guilt and questions about what they should have done. Tamron recognized the importance of raising awareness for families who have loved ones experiencing abuse, and that is why she has created "The Tamron ♥ Renate Fund" to support Safe Horizon in helping victims and their families.

Renate, a mother of two, was murdered in 2004 after years of relationships with abusive men. "My sister's death was ruled a homicide," Hall said. "Blunt force trauma to the back of the head. A few months prior to her death I witnessed a violent confrontation where my sister was injured, but ultimately, no one was ever charged in her homicide or in her murder and no suspect was named. My sister's case has led me to focus a lot of my attention on domestic violence. We don't know what happened in her case, what I do know is that she was found in a swimming pool in the back of her home, face down, and it was ruled a homicide. My journey to speak out on domestic violence was based on conversations that I had with my sister."

Join Tamron in supporting Safe Horizon's domestic violence programs so that women and men like Renate can find support as well as a place for friends and family to find resources.
